Tuscany

Marion Hattemer, the owner, and family spent seven years converting the hilltop hamlet of Vitigliano, which dates back to 1085, into the seven-room Vitigliano Tuscan Relais & Spa, which opened in May near central Greve in Chianti. Many rooms feature beamed ceilings, stone walls, marble bathrooms and free-standing tubs. Surrounded by 12.5 acres including an olive grove and oak forest, the resort distributes its many amenities — including a hammam, yoga studio, gym, outdoor pool and 16th-century chapel — among many of the original buildings. The restaurant serves only guests, and the wine cellar is stocked with a private label wine created by Tommaso Cavalli, a neighbor and son of the fashion designer Roberto Cavalli. Rooms from 350 euros, including breakfast. Information: vitigliano.com.
